China could overtake the U.S. as the world's biggest economy by 2030. according to economic experts.

[New York Times, "China Passes Japan as Second-Largest Economy" August 15, 2010]

China could overtake the U.S. as the largest economy as early as 2027, according to Goldman Sachs Group Inc. chief economist Jim O'Neill.

China's economy could overtake the U.S. economy by 2019. "given reasonable assumptions". according to The Economist in 2011. The posting says that "Absent a total disaster in China, the transition will take place, and that right soon. Why? Well, China remains far behind the developed world in per capita terms, and because there is plenty of catch-up left to accomplish, there's plenty of room for rapid growth. And China's population is enormous. It has over four times as many people as America, and so its output per capita only needs to be about a fourth of America's to match it in total size."
